EDGELY ATHLETES GAIN SECOND LEG ON CUP; WIN MEET

Run Up 44 1-3 Points in Contests Closing Week's Activities

SIXTH WARD SECOND Four Medals Are Awarded To Lucille Layton, Fourth Ward

HOW POINTS WERE SCORED AT GIRLS' WEEK MEET
First Ward	3 1/3
Second Ward	1
Third Ward	6
Fourth Ward	19 1/3
Fifth Ward	0
Sixth Ward	34

Edgely girl athletes scored the most points at the meet which was held on the high school grounds Saturday afternoon despite the inclement weather, and thus repeated last year's performance. This gives them the second leg on the cup.

It was a nip and tuck affair between Edgely and the Sixth Ward until the basketball throw was completed. Edgely scored all three places in this event and rolled up nine points which put them safely in the lead. Up until this time a third of a point had separated the two rivals.

The feature of the meet was the number of medals awarded to Lucille Layton, fourth ward contestant. She captured four this year. Last year she won two.

The real contest was between the Sixth Ward and Edgely girls, the other districts not scoring anywhere near the number of points.

Edgely girls gained first place with 44 1-3 points, with the other sections placing as follows: Sixth Ward, 34; fourth ward, 19 1-3; third ward, 6; first ward, 3 1-3; second ward, 1; fifth ward, 0; Croydon, 0.

Summary of events follows:
Class A—Dash: Won by Rhode, 6th ward; Whyatt, 6th ward, 2nd; Layton, 4th ward, 3rd.

Class B—Dash: Won by Larzelere, Edgely, second; Barocchi, sixth ward; third, Lynch, sixth ward.

Class B—Broad jump: Won by Barocchi, sixth ward; second, Marrell, Edgely; third, Faber, Edgely; third, Chamberlain, fourth ward; third, Blanche, first ward. Distance, 7'-5 1/2". Last three tied for third place at 6'-11". Toss coin and medal won by Blanche.

Class A—Baseball Throw: Won by Still, Edgely; second, Dewsnap, Edgely; third, Lynch, sixth ward.

HANDSOME SILVER TROPHY AWARDED EDGELY GROUP FOR BEST APPEARANCE IN GIRLS' WEEK PARADE ON SATURDAY

Blending of Many Colors Makes for Rainbow of Youth—Spectators' Admiring Glances Pronounce Affair Success—5th Ward Again Secures Banner for Most in Line

The blending of colorfully costumed girls made for a most gorgeous rainbow in Bristol Saturday afternoon for the Girls' Week parade. The sunshine necessary for this phenomena was that of smiles; while in lieu of the pattering of rain there was the merry patter of feet.

Every conceivable hue was in evidence; girls of all sizes and from all sections were in line; spectators lined the streets to cast admiring glances—and pronounced it a success.

The Edgely group was judged the best appearing and was awarded the handsome silver trophy which last year was given to the girls of the First Ward of Bristol.

The judges were: Mrs. Harry Simons and Mrs. Albert Wunch, South Langhorne. The judges stand was located in front of the display room of C. W. Winter, Mill and Wood streets.

In judging the groups three points were given consideration. Points were awarded for costumes, lines and marching.

Honors for the best float went to the Matinecock Camp Fire Girls. Fifth ward again won the banner for having the largest number in line. This ward won the same honor last year.

The official count of each district is given as follows:
First ward, 90; second ward, 144; third ward, 84; fourth ward, 140; fifth ward, 275; sixth ward, 200; Edgely, 99; Croydon, 72.

The spectacle was one of the finest exhibited here for some time, and far surpassed that of last year's Girls' Week. As each specific group made its appearance in line on Jefferson avenue, the starting point of the parade, it seemed fairly dazzling; and with the amalgamation of the eight sections a magnificent sight was presented. Each of the six wards was colorfully and largely represented, as were also Croydon and Edgely. The ward leaders and co-workers were well pleased with results of their efforts, the girls were full of vim ready for a big afternoon, and the public was proud of all—the cream of girlhood and young womanhood.

Promptly at two the march began, each group having at its head a musical organization. The smaller tots made attempts at primness while the older ones made a valiant attempt to keep the line moving well.

START COURT ACTION IN BRIDGE DISPUTE

Asks Injunction to Prevent Reading Railroad From Removing Bridge

BILL HAS BEEN FILED

DOYLESTOWN, May 25.—Taxpayers and the governing body of South Langhorne borough joined hands in the Court of Common Pleas to battle with the Reading Company to a finish in an injunction proceeding to prevent the railroad company from destroying the Hulmeville avenue bridge over the Reading tracks in South Langhorne.

Isaac J. Vanartsdalen and Edward Biester, local attorneys, have filed the bill at the Prothonotary's office. This action was decided upon at a special meeting of South Langhorne Council last week, when a resolution authorizing the suit was passed.

The Hulmeville avenue bridge connects South Langhorne with Langhorne Manor. Hulmeville avenue is the principal street. It is one of the main roads of Bucks county and part of a State route to Philadelphia. At all seasons of the year, but particularly in the warm weather, it is very heavily traveled.

In addition to the governing body of South Langhorne, the names of a number of citizens and taxpayers will be affixed to the equity court petition, as follows: C. S. Doyle, J. A. Good, Burgess Flaxman, County Fire Marshal W. L. Stackhouse, of South Langhorne section, and S. L. Linnington and Robert D. Stone, of Langhorne Manor.

In behalf of the borough, it is charged that closing of the bridge constitutes not only an inconvenience but a grave danger for people of the vicinity. There is a grade crossing some distance away. Railroad gates at the crossing are down, it is alleged, from 16 to 32 minutes at a time to allow a movement of trains. This leaves all traffic on one of the main roads between Bristol and Newtown held up, the borough recites.

The bridge has been closed for about a month.

Children going to public and parochial schools, the petitioners added, use the bridge in preference to crossing the train tracks. On Hulmeville avenue in this borough, there are six factories, a theatre, a public school, a church and many homes.

Another phase of the bridge fight is a dispute as to ownership of the span. Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, South Langhorne borough attorney, contends that Bucks county owns the bridge. Built in 1896 at a cost of $9,000, the attorney said the Reading Company has no right to close the structure, which has been used by the public for 35 years.

It is stated that 64 passenger trains a day pass through this place and 42 on Sundays in addition to freights and Baltimore and Ohio trains.

At a recent protest meeting over the bridge question, J. H. Beckman, counsel for the railroad, said the span had been condemned by a Public Service Commission engineer. Mr. Vanartsdalen, however, declares that the structure was not condemned officially, as no notice was sent to the borough or the county by the commission.

All Three Men Appeared in Bucks County Court Today to Have Cases Disposed Of by Judges—Haney Pathetic Figure As He Takes With Face Swathed In Bandages—Takes Death Sentence Calmly

DOYLESTOWN, May 25.—One man was sentenced to die in the electric chair and two others were given life imprisonment today when for the first time, three men appeared on the same day on charges of murder, in Bucks County Court. A fourth man who has been held in jail as a material witness since February 25th, was released under $1,000 bond in his own recognizance.

Those sentenced were: Charles Haney, 27, Yardley, convicted in the first degree of murdering his wife, was sentenced to the electric chair by Judge Hiram H. Keller.

John Tagg, Jr., 22, South Langhorne, and Marion Ellis, 21, South Carolina, both were sentenced to life imprisonment in the Eastern State Penitentiary. Both men pleaded guilty to being with William C. Snipes, convicted of first degree murder of Edward Gamils, 44, proprietor of the Blue Spruce Inn, at Trevoise.

Karl ("Bozo") Meyers, Philadelphia, who has been held as a material witness in the Gamils case, was released with the understanding that if Snipes' appeal for a new trial is successful, Meyers will again be subpoenaed as a witness. Meyers already has the sum of $505 due him for witness fees in the case.

Bandits Injure Watchman At Philadelphia Plant

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Harry Barnes, 52, night watchman at the plant of the International Printing Ink Corporation, here, was perhaps fatally injured today by a gang of bandits who attacked the victim while he was eating lunch in the plant, early this morning.

Barnes suffered a fractured skull when struck over the head by a heavy wrench which police found nearby. Little hope for his recovery is held by attaches of St. Luke's Children's Hospital.

Only an electric switch box, which detectives believe the robbers mistook for a safe, was disturbed at the plant. Entrance was gained by scaling a high iron fence and forcing a rear door.

The attempted robbery was discovered by members of a detective agency when bombs failed to discharge a time clock device at an appointed hour.

TIME IS GOLDEN IN THE RACE FOR BIG VOTES; EXCITEMENT PREVAELS AS PERIOD CLOSES

Only Few Hours Remain in Which to Boost Second Period Totals—Eleven More Days and Campaign Will Be History

With but approximately four hours in which to enter subscriptions and secure the maximum number of votes and points allowed, and with but a few short days to go until the entire campaign comes to a close, most of the candidates entered in The Courier's $10,000 Gold Gift Campaign seem to be exerting every ounce of energy possible, in an effort to gain supremacy as the final days of the big gold drive loom in sight.

Prizes Waiting
The Eleven big bags of gold are waiting for the candidates who will put forth their best efforts now. When one considers the value of the prizes offered—gold coin of the realm—it is not strange that the more determined and hard working candidates have resolved to permit nothing to stop them in their race for victory. These energetic workers are setting a pace that is proving 'tough' for some of the slower ones to keep. Any of the candidates can win the best of the prizes with a little real effort these remaining hours, as close as the race now stands.

Time Is Golden
Every hour, every minute in the short time that remains should be utilized to the fullest extent, by those earnest workers who really want to take advantage of what may prove to be the greatest event in their lives. It seems to be "do or die" today. It will be interesting, indeed, to see which candidates will be able to climb to the top and stay there. The wide-awake candidates, with the assistance of this big second period vote schedule, could pile up a vote total that could not easily be overcome in the final, low-vote periods. The wide- (Continued on Page 4)

Bridge Dedication Pictures Will Be Shown at Grand

Tonight and tomorrow night at the Grand Theatre there will be a show of exceptional merit and interest to the people of Bristol and vicinity. The interest to the local residents will be pictures of the dedication of the new Burlington-Bristol bridge and snaps of the parade on that day. This picture will show the clipping of the cord by Mrs. DeBennette Keimf the speakers, including Governor Larson and other notables. The rain fell on that eventful day and thousands who would have liked to witness the events, were compelled to stay away. But these can see it all, seated comfortably in the Grand Theatre. Manager Edward Lynn has an exceptionally good feature picture, Norma Shearer, the outstanding screen actress of today, in her very latest and what all critics claim is her very best picture, "Strangers Her Kiss." This is really a show that should please everyone— (Continued on Page 4)

BOY OF 17 ADMITS STABBING ANOTHER

Nepa Guerino, 17, 1514 Trenton avenue, is alleged to have stabbed Chester Tershon, 17, of 508 Jefferson avenue, in the back shortly after noon today. The stabbing was done with a pen-knife, the blade of which went five inches into the left shoulder of Tershon.

INTERCONTINENTAL HIGHWAY

Mexico a few days ago celebrated the last blast of dynamite in the construction of a Mexican link of the proposed monumental Pan-American highway connecting the three Americas. Completion of this great motor road, years hence, will mark the beginning of a new era for Central and South America and in international affairs in the Western Hemisphere.

Just as transcontinental highways have opened the United States to millions of Americans who otherwise would have seen America neither first nor last, the Pan-American highway will bring the peoples of three continents within easy access of each other. Millions of American car owners are eagerly awaiting the time when they can motor through Mexico and down into the isthmus and South America.

Central America has an economic and social interest in the highway, as well as the desire to open its scenery to the world. The constant flow of traffic from foreign countries will do more than anything else to abolish banditry in the mountainous and little settled regions, will bring new business and will have an immediate effect upon the customs and habits of the natives. Highways in all times have been the greatest civilizing factors.

By the same token the United States and Canada can expect more business from Latin-America as a result of this interconnection by automobile road.

Such are the benefits of free intercourse of nations that the completion of the Pan-American highway will be the greatest step forward in Pan-American affairs since the Monroe Doctrine.

DEADLY MOSQUITO

The tiny mosquito often seems more of a pest than a formidable antagonist, but in open contest with man she (only the female bites) has won more victories than have been scored by the large beasts of the jungle or deadly reptiles. This little insect has rendered fertile and desirable lands uninhabitable, impeded the march of progress and infected millions with the fatal malaria germ. In the tropics every engineering project depends largely upon the success of preliminary mosquito-extermination campaigns.

In a number of badly infested sections of the United States the government has got down to business and waged campaigns against mosquitoes with the same vigor as against armed invaders. During the mosquito breeding season—the rainy season—a little army, which includes sanitary engineers, laboratory experts, inspectors, truck drivers and laborers, is busy spraying ponds, searching for pools and every sort of receptacle in which mosquitoes may hatch. They go out with trucks equipped with machine-driven pumps to spread oil on the mosquito-troubled waters. The balance of the year is spent in drainage work.

Every community or section is troubled with this vicious and annoying insect, but only because of its own carelessness and neglect. If every property owner would destroy the breeding places—not an impossible task—the extermination would soon be complete.

COMMUNICATION

Editor of the Courier

Bristol, Pa.

Sir: The Boys' Week having come successfully to a conclusion, I wish to heartily thank all those who have contributed either actively or financially, especially the chairmen and their respective committees, the ward leaders, the different fraternal organizations and service clubs, the legion and Cadets Bugle Corps, the Bucks County Boy Scouts and the Morrisville School Band.

Especially do I appreciate the courtesy of Mr. Edward Lynn, who in the kindness of his heart offered the Grand Theatre for the entertainment of the boys, and who has proven time and again his interest in boys.

Last but not least I wish to thank the local press for its whole-hearted cooperation.

Boys' Week will evidently be a permanent annual affair in Bristol. Its success, however, can only be assured by the active working together of all local organizations.

Handsome Silver Trophy Awarded To Edgely Group

Foreign Wars, and followed by the Girl Scouts of Croydon, under supervision of Captain Brenner; Edgely group, with the Edgely Girl Scouts at the fore; then the six wards of Bristol in numerical order. A float of Matiniconk Camp Fire Girls was very attractive; several of the girls resting upon this with two in ceremonial dress at the campfire in front of a small tent.

Blue and white were the hues chosen by the Edgely group and well arranged were the costumes. Each was garbed in white as a sailor, the trimming being of blue. Atop each fair head was a jaunty sailor hat, of the two selected colors. The representatives from this section of Bristol Township were arranged in line in such a manner that the formation spelled E-D-G-E-L-Y, the letters used for a "base" in keeping the formation in good style were of dark blue. Six small girls, in line across the front of the aggregation each wore a letter, the whole giving the town represented. The Edgely athletes wore dark blue trunks, white blouses, white sneakers and socks, the herets being of blue, and sweat shirts of gray.

The 72 girls in line from Croydon were attractive in their small crepe paper capes of green.

With white shorts and white blouses, with red ties and socks and red berets, did the first ward girls fall into line. They had not forgotten the cup won last year for making the best appearance in line, and this was mounted on a child's express wagon, drawn by two of the smaller girls. They came from each of which was furling a red pennant bearing the figure "1" were linked together by the paraders from that section of the borough. Augmenting the aggregation was a truck bearing a May Queen chosen for the occasion from the first ward, Miss Ruth Blanchie. The conveyance was banked with palms, and about the Queen were seated tiny flower girls with their bouquets of bright-hued blossoms.

Ward Two had as its color scheme blue and yellow, each girl garbed as a jockey. Following the Morrisville Girl Scouts drum and bugle corps, the girls were lined up, their yellow blouses and blue skirts looking most attractive. The jockey caps were of yellow and black, and each girl had a small whip. Yellow socks and black slippers completed the costumes. Near the front ranks of this gathering were two small flower girls, Rose Marie Wilno and Geraldine Fenton; followed by two tots on tricycles, Bunny White and Rose Marie Welsh.

Marching three abreast, one in red, one in white and one in blue, the third ward representatives were hailed on all sides. The dresses of chintz were attractive, and each girl wore a hat of white, the trimming matching the shade of the dress; while those garbed in white had hats of the same shade trimmed in red and blue and sprinkled with silver stars. Bamboo poles, bound in white with twinnings of red crepe paper were held by each of three girls, these being connected from row to row with red chintz streamers. The third ward harmonica band, composed of several men, furnished music for this group. The athletes of this aggregation followed the other representatives, these being attired in white blouses and red trunks.

St. Francis Industrial School Band led the fair young women of the fourth ward, who were garbed in Grecian costumes. The pastel shades, gave a most girlish aspect to the appearance of the many in line from that vicinity, with orchid, two shades of blue, two tints of green, rose, pink, white, canary and egg shell. Each wore a head-band to match the color of the dress, the gowns being formed of voile. Athletes representing these young women had white trunks, jerseys and sweat shirts, these being trimmed in green.

A unique group was that of the young women forming a 24-piece kitchen orchestra for the fifth ward girls. Each had prepared for the frolic of the day by donning a gay-colored pair of pajamas. The instruments used were "gazooks," while each also handled a kitchen utensil: Rolling pins, potato mashers, dust brushes, etc., were in evidence. The musical organization at the head of this section was the bugle corps of the South Langhorne Girl Scouts. The bugle corps was followed by the massed colors, and then came two tiny toe dancers, Yolanda Puccio and Florence Antonelli in dresses of white, with rose capes. The large number of girls from the fifth ward wore sateen capes, some being in old rose and others in blue. From the top of sticks carried by each, dangled gay colored balloons. The athletes from the fifth ward had light blue trunks and white jerseys, and blue socks.

Preceding the sixth ward girls was the Bracken Post cadet bugle corps. For its colors the sixth ward selected those of one of the foremost industries located in that section, the Keystone Aircraft Corporation. A truck had been arranged for a youthful aviator, Miss Frances Soule; and in front of her were two model airplanes. The Keystone colors of blue and gold were carried out in the costumes of this group. The suits of blue were trimmed with gold; while upon each cap was a tiny airplane, and each of the ones in line carried an American flag. The athletes of the sixth ward had trunks of red, with blouses of white. For parade formation these wore over their track suits white blouses and blue skirts, with red neckties.

Cups won last year by the wards were in evidence here and there in the life of parade, as well as cups presented during Girls' Week to individuals for prowess along certain lines.

The parade of Saturday was the result of weeks of endeavor, women from all sections of the town, as well as from Croydon and Edgely, assisting the girls in preparations. Feverish interest was manifest, and the splendid results did credit to all who took part. Congratulations have been showered upon the ward leaders, and athletic directors, as well as the girls here.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By NANCY LEE

DEAR NANCY LEE: We are two girls of fifteen. Every time we go out on the streets for errands or anything, we are bothered by two young boys in a car. We do not think they are fit company. Also our parents don't want us to go with boys or keep company. Please advise us as to what we should do.

BLONDEY: As your parents are sensible and have sensible children, why not take them into your confidence and tell them about the boys. I am sure that if the father or older brother of one of your girls would speak to the young men, the annoyance would soon cease. If you don't want to worry your people, what about the policeman on your block?

DEAR NANCY LEE: How long should a fellow go with a girl before, speaking of the future, and should a girl give up hope and do her best to give up the fellow after going with him two years. I love him dearly.

"BIBSY": No you cannot afford to waste your life and you owe it to yourself not to do so for one moment longer. Surely two years is a long enough time for any man to know his mind. You should not have let it go for such a time, without having some understanding. Of course you know whether or not the young man's financial status precludes him from making wedding plans. But just the same see to it that there is some kind of an understanding, or else write "finis" to that chapter of your life.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

THREE men were running toward the slowly moving amphibian. As they reached its side the clumsy-looking ship began to gather speed. Two of the running men managed to work their way over the round mahogany hull and into the cockpit. The third slipped, clutched the cowl with one hand and remained clinging there, his feet dragging on the ground. The plane's wheels left the earth. The clinging man held on, twisting in the wind blast as the heavy ship climbed. Then he let go. The plane went on, disappearing in the darkness over the northern end of the field. Only the motionless, sprawling figure remained to mark its passing.

Dave's throttle was choked. He was whirling down in a dizzy spiral. As the little ship spun toward the earth he caught a hazy glimpse of a second car on the field. But the image was blurred and, for the moment, he was not interested. He had eyes only for Joan, who was running from the stalled truck. His wheels snatched the ground close by her side. Automatic in hand, he leaped out of the cockpit before the plane ceased moving. She was still running. She screamed as he caught her and threw his right arm around her slender body. She struck at him. "Joan!" he called sharply.

At the sound of his voice her flailing hands dropped to her side. His left arm surrounded her and he drew her close to him. And she was utterly content to remain in his protecting arms, sheltered from the seething tide of conflict that had, but an instant before, raged and swirled around her. She was no longer the self-sufficient, competent mistress of the plantation house. She was a buffeted, bewildered girl, whose world had suddenly erupted to the sound of harsh voices spitting guns and roaring motors.

Gerry's long-nosed car suddenly appeared beside them and stopped, interposing its huge bulk between them and the milling men across the field.

After the Battle.

"Nice place for a clinic," Gerry observed, owlishly, swinging the tenebrous door open. "Has anybody told you there's a lovely war going on?"

"I'm all right, now," smiled Joan, looking up into Dave's bronzed face.

With an easy swing of his powerful arms he lifted her to the tenebrous field was strangely still. The men who, a moment before, had been running, shooting and yelling, had disappeared. The car jumped ahead, skidded around in a great circle and sped across the turf toward the Ford.

"Who's in that Ford?" demanded Dave, staring over Gerry's shoulder.

"Oh, Babs and Sally and Hannah," said Gerry, morosely, "and probably any other women who happen to be in this part of the country. I knew it couldn't be a man's fight." He jammed on the brakes as the powerful car reached the side of the rusty little Ford. Hannah, almost incoherent in her joy, pushed herself to her feet, her ivory and gold teeth showing in a wide-mouthed smile.

"Go! Gawd, Miss Joan," she shrieked. "I thought you was dead!"

Reluctantly Dave released the warm little hand that had slipped so trustingly into his own. There was silence on the field now, but at any instant the battle might break out anew.

"Can you get back to the house, Gerry," he asked, "before you have to change that tire?"

"Sure," Gerry nodded. "It's all shot now. Might as well finish it."

The Last Act.

"Hannah," said Dave. "You get in here with Miss Joan. Then everyone but Talbot beat it to the house. He and I have some business here."

Hannah rolled a mustang eye at Gerry. "Miss Joan," she begged, "y'all get in this little bitty car wid me. I doan' trust dat man. He like to kill me in dat house back yonder."

Barbara promptly crawled out of the Ford.

"In that case," she said, "I'll ride back with Gerry darling. He seems to have sobered up."

Gerry sighed regretfully. "If I thought it might start another ruckus, I'd get me another skunk," he said earnestly.

Joan descended from the Hispano-Suiza and climbed into the creaking Ford. She was still white and shaken. Sally patted her shoulder.

"Let's go, Talbot," said Dave, impatiently. "Those gunmen may start shooting again." His eyes met Joan's. He smiled softly and waved. "See you all later."

The two cars got under way. Dave resolutely turned his eyes toward the hangar. As he and Talbot walked warily across the field there was no sign of the gunmen. Except for the still forms that lay on the ground and for the brilliant illumination of the yawning shed, the place was as desolate as the abandoned sub-division of Cathay.

The motor truck, its engine silent, stood alone near the hangar door. Mueller's sub-calibre machine gun lay almost on the concrete ramp.

Dave passed Joan's automatic to Talbot and picked up the heavy gun. Its clip of bullets was but half empty.

From the shadows of the orange grove came a hail.

"Hey, you guys!"

"Get out of the light, Talbot," Dave snapped. Then, lifting his voice, "Well?"

"We give up," came the voice, "will you let us get away?"

"Drop your guns and come over here," shouted Dave, grimly. "Keep your hands over your heads or I'll turn this machine gun on you."

First singly, then by twos and threes, Mueller's men straggled slowly, hesitatingly, across the moonlit clearing. When they had reached the brilliantly lighted space in front of the hangar door, Dave signalled for them to halt.

One man stopped forward. Dave's muscles grew taut. It was Mueller's Italian bodyguard, the thick-necked gunman who had held him erect and helpless while the ivory and gold teeth showing in a wide-mouthed smile.

"Listen, feller," said the Italian, smiling placatingly. "We all got enough, see? How about letting us go on the lam?"

"Talbot," said Dave, slowly, "you take this machine gun a minute. Keep the rest of those plug-ugies covered and if they move, let them have all the rest of the bullets in the clip. I'm going to tear that wop to pieces with my two hands."

"You're having a rush of words, old-timer," drawled Talbot. "You beat a good little boy and behave yourself. We've had a nice little fight, plenty for one evening. Now let's get this billingsgate over with. I have a date back at the house."

Dave steadied himself with an effort. Talbot's sanity was like an icy shower on his raw nerves. There had been enough fighting for one evening and for a lifetime. The Italian, his hot black eyes very anxious, was waiting for an answer. The others behind him were staring silently.

"What's your proposition?" asked Dave, coldly. "This is a matter for the sheriff, you know. There

TONIGHT AT 10:00 —WHO— WILL BE VICTORIOUS?

Tonight's The Night!

A little more than four hours of this important period are left. In that short time candidates in The Courier's $10,000 Gold Prize-Giving Event have their last opportunity of landing votes on the "double-quick" and literally "cinching" the prize they most desired. Perhaps never before, in an affair of this kind, have the leaders gone along so extremely close, or has a similar affair been so hotly contested. This fact has undoubtedly served to arouse the wonderful interest that is being taken throughout this entire section in the final dash for the wire. It is doubtful if there exists a single home in this section of Pennsylvania that is not vitally interested in the success of one of the ambitious workers in the big battle for votes, watching every gain with anxiety and eagerness, hoping and trusting that their choice may come under the wire first, to be acclaimed the champion of champions, the proud possessor of one of the big bags of gold.

Let's Go For a Big Second Period
Finish; The Winning Votes
Can Be Secured Now!

awake candidates can pile up a big point score in this period toward the special prize of $300 in gold. One subscription turned in up to 10 o'clock tonight has the same point value as three subscriptions turned in next week. Think of the difference and act today.

Who Will Win

Who will win the big special prize of $300 in gold? Who will win the other ten bags? These are the principal questions in Bristol and this vicinity these days. Just eleven more days and these questions will be answered. Scores of predictions have been offered—palmists and exponents of the occult science have been consulted by some in an effort to obtain some inkling of what the final outcome will be. But the final results seem to be as much in doubt as ever. Endeavoring to eliminate as much of this doubt as possible, candidates in all districts seem to be scouring the territory as the race for supremacy is rushing forward nip and tuck. Many of those who, according to their vote standings have been having "hard luck" or probably have been unable to develop their territory as effectively as some of the others up to date, may spring some surprises now, now that the rain has ceased and the sun seemingly has begun to shine in earnest.

Over-Confidence Handicap

This may cause some of the over-confident ones to go down to defeat.

Over-confidence is one of the greatest handicaps under which a candidate can work. The only way to be sure of winning is to spend every possible minute scouring for subscriptions. Perseverance is a big factor in winning, and just think what is at the top of the ladder of success, for the plucky ones. Let's go for a winning finish tonight.

"Open House" Being Held By All Buick Dealers

Buick is holding "Open House." From May 23 to June 10 motorists generally are invited to participate in a special program arranged for Buick showrooms in all parts of the country. The invitations are being extended to the public through a country-wide newspaper advertising campaign sponsored by the Buick Motor Company. In each local advertisement announcing the Open House program the names of Buick dealers are listed for the convenience of those who wish to attend.

All of the 2,000 dealers who are joining in the Open House program have made special arrangements for the event. One interesting feature is that everyone will be given a chance to drive a Buick.

In this connection, C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Company, points out that the real test of an automobile these days is its performance under the complex conditions of modern street and highway driving.

"Of course, all automobiles will run today," Mr. Churchill said, "but it is inevitable that some represent more transportation value than others. That the public is already aware of this is shown by the success of the Buick straight eight, which is selling fifty per cent of the total cars in its price class, some thirteen other cars sharing the remainder of the business."

"The motive actuating buyers today is mainly one of getting the most automobile value for the purchase price. The real test of this value is actual road performance. In the case of Buick, our twenty-seven years of manufacturing assure dependable engineering, and now we want the public to know what a brilliant and sturdy performer the Buick straight eight really is."

Swindles "Gas" Stations With Forged Checks

The money given as change, just how much and to what extent the Bristol dealers have been swindled is not known at this time.

The stranger, a man, traveling alone, drove up to the various stations and made his purchases. In some instances he bought oil and then in others he purchased gasoline. He always gave a check signed with the name of a local reputable firm, which was made out for more than the purchase amounted to.

It is believed that after having his tank filled with gasoline that he drove off and emptied it.

The checks were detected at a local bank today and it was then that the swindle was discovered.

Over 300 Children Take Part in May Day Parade

CROYDON, May 25.—More than 300 children of St. Thomas Parochial School, were in the May Day procession at St. Thomas Aquinas' Church, here, yesterday afternoon.

The boys and girls traversed the church grounds, then entered the edifice to listen to an address by the Rev. Father Thomas Nolan, who directed a portion of his talk to the children who had their first holy communion yesterday morning.

The procession was led by Joseph Gordon, one of the altar boys, who was cross-bearer on this occasion, and Margaret Wolfram, the queen. The girls were attired in white dresses.

Our Business Is "Picking Up"

That's it—literally. We pick up passengers along our lines and let them off wherever they choose to be let off.

We pick them up at all hours, from early morning until late at night.

Sometimes we pick up enough to make the day's efforts worth while, but more often we have just been rendering the public a necessary and convenient service.

Our great need is MORE PASSENGERS.

We want to pick up MORE CUSTOMERS.

The more we get, the better we can make the service, and it is our ambition to make it the best service possible, consistent with the support given us.

We give a friendly, a responsible, a convenient service.

With our buses we are reaching parts of some communities that, prior to the bus service, had no public transportation facilities of any kind.

We have made living in the suburbs more comfortable and convenient; we have made real estate more accessible and consequently more valuable.

We are in business for the service of the public. All we ask is recognition of that fact, and the sympathetic understanding to which we believe we are entitled.

WEALTHY MEN ALLEGED ARSON RING MEMBERS

Arrest Made of Two Philadelphians; Others Await Action

SAID TO HAVE PROFITS

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—Two more wealthy Philadelphians were in the arms of the law here today following their arrest yesterday in connection with an alleged million dollar arson ring which is said to have flourished in this city for the past ten years.

The men identified by police as Charles Teitelbaum and David Meddos, are said to have received insurance profits from incendiary fires at their plants here.

Louis Lang, insurance adjuster who was arrested Friday and held under $70,000 bail on seven counts of arson and conspiracy to commit arson, was lodged in Moyamensing Prison to await action by the Grand Jury.

It was his arrest that started a wholesale investigation which police believe will lead to a number of arrests this week in connection with the alleged ring.

Samuel Greenfield, awaiting sentence on charges of arson, furnished Judge Harry S. McDevitt with the information which led to Lang's arrest. Judge McDevitt declared yesterday he believes the investigation will expose conditions which have existed here for the past ten years.

HARRISBURG—(INS)—An appeal to motorists to watch children was issued here by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Benjamin Eynon as school vacation seasons near.

Concert by Fathers' Ass'n Is Arranged for Tomorrow

The orchestra of the Bristol Fathers' Association will give its first open musical concert tomorrow evening at 8.15 in the auditorium of the Bristol M. E. Church, Cedar and Mulberry streets.

The music lovers have a treat in store for them, as the 26 artists have practiced faithfully during the entire winter, and their music at the Fathers' Association meetings has been greatly appreciated.

Joseph Martini, as director, has proved that right in Bristol there is a young man designed to advance in the musical world as a leader. John H. Brehm has worked faithfully as business manager to make the organization the success it is.

Seeking British Open Crown

By HARDIN BURNLEY

JOHNNY FARRELL--
--ONE OF AMERICA'S BEST BETS IN THE COMING BRITISH OPEN PLAY!

LEO DIEGEL--
--IF LEO IS "HOT," HE WILL BE A REAL THREAT IN JOHN BULL'S PET TOURNEY!

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

WHILE the incomparable Bobby Jones and the glamorous Walter Hagen will not go to England this Spring for the British Open, Uncle Sam is proud of, and confident in, the American superstars who will try to make John Bull's golf masters dig petulant divots.

Gene Sarazen and his pal, Johnny Farrell; Leo Diegel, and the two Smiths—MacDonald and Horton—have gone, singly or in pairs, to strive for professional links supremacy abroad.

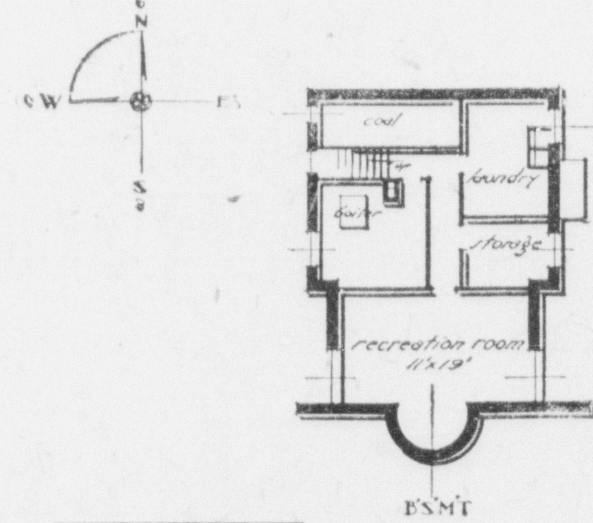

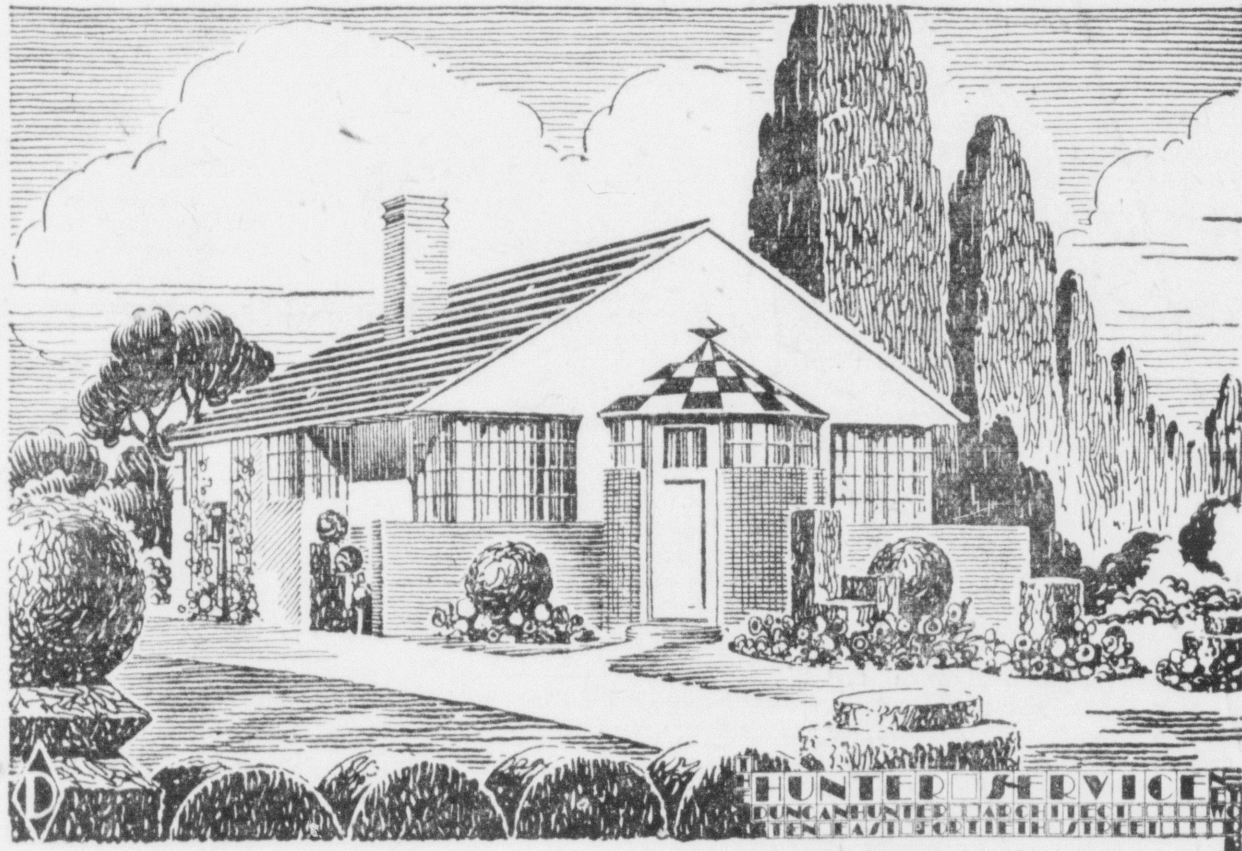

And in the British Amateur, America believes it has the winner in the person of George Voigt who is making a mighty attempt to succeed to the simon pure laurels of Jones.

British golfers are rather well acquainted with the American players named here, though only Jones and Hagen ever won any of John Bull's principal classics. Sarazen and Farrell have been Open runners-up over there, while Diegel and "Mac" Smith have thrilled with great rounds and shots in such events. However, only the presence of Jones or Hagen, or both, ever gave English and Scotch masters victory qualms of a "they-can't-be-beat" nature.

Yet now, in many an overseas locker room and pub those who talk golf are wondering "just what can bleedin' well be done to stop one of those bloomin' Yanks from winnin' our H'open!"

The British know much of Diegel's intriguing putting and the that Sarazen and Farrell are just approaching golfing prime. They realize the American talent is aroused at the prospect of producing a successor to Jones. Why Horton Smith, now verging on 23, and whose game went bla a few months ago, traveled overseas more than a month in advance of the Open to thoroughly acclimatize himself and practice with his English friend, Sir Philip Sassoon! Jones and "Hort" Smith are warm friends. If Horton can "get back on his game" he may be the dark horse in the Open, but that's no consolation for John Bull who must be worrying as he thinks of the victory chances of Sarazen Farrell, Diegel or "Mac" Smith.

THE COMPANIONATE

That the Modern Mode in Architecture is new in this country is not to be disputed, it is in fact so new that in 1924 when France invited the United States to take part in their exhibition of modern art—the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs et Industriels Modernes, held in Paris—Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, stated that there was no modern decorative art in this country and declined the invitation. And this—just five short years ago.

Today we find modern design on every turn and the unique freshness it offers is most decidedly welcome. It fits our times and mode of expression. For instance, the modern furniture—it is designed with low, deep, comfortable seats, chairs with frames of metal that give strength and are easy to move about, tables with glass tops that leave no "fingers" from glasses, nowadays we eat and drink where and when we like so modern furniture is designed to meet this need—the tables are low to suit the chairs, book shelves are built into the furniture where they best serve and often the furniture is completely electrically wired so that the reader has every comfort. And this type of furniture can be made by machinery with no loss of character but with rather enhancement, while the old type of furniture, "the antique" and its reproductions required individual hand production to attain the quality it boasted—when machine made quantity production was applied this type lost its only charm. Our motor cars are not made by hand, why should our furniture be?

The Companionate is a Modern house, modest in size. It lists:
Basement—Recreation Room, Laundry, Storage, Boiler Room and Coal Storage.
First Floor—Entrance Vestibule with coat space, combined Living and Dining Room, two Bed Rooms, Kitchen and Bath.
Ceiling Heights: Basement, seven feet; First Floor, eight feet.
Exposures—The plans as shown are for a lot facing South or West. For a lot facing North or East the plans should be reversed.
Lot Size—House frontage, 25 feet; side clearance, left 10 feet, right 5 feet; lot frontage, minimum 40 feet.
Construction—Frame, with stucco finish, front of brick; roof, slate; foundation, concrete; windows, steel casements; doors, wood to special details.
Interiors—Floors, wood for linoleum finish; walls, plaster; kitchen, plaster; bath room, composition tile; steam heat, gas and electric wiring.
Cubature—13,600 cu. ft.
Approximate cost—$5,700.
Complete working plans and specifications of this house are available for a nominal sum. Address the Building Editor and refer to House H-113.
